

Initiating 2024 Direct Access with Exemplary Companies: Texas Instruments Incorporated

To initiate the 2024 the Direct Access™ program with our promised focus on exemplary companies, we are very fortunate to be able to start with Texas Instruments Incorporated (Nasdaq: TXN), a company that has established clear leadership in semiconductors that are essential to a broad range of basic industrial applications as well as to the latest high growth technologies, and that has done so by focusing on long term commitments of capital as well as clear respect for all of the stakeholders on which an enterprise depends.

The event will be hosted by the CFA Society New York (“CFANY”) in its New York City facilities on the afternoon of Wednesday, February 28, with a more specific time to be established as plans are refined. Attendance, either in-person or virtual, will be open to CFANY and affiliated Society members, and of course to Forum Participants. An archived recording of the event should be made publicly available the following day.

Any suggestions of questions or subjects to be addressed will be welcomed by the event’s planning panel, which includes representatives of Texas Instruments as well as the Forum and CFANY’s Institutional Asset Management Group.

At the start of a new year, we look forward to initiating the Direct Access program with the Texas Instruments examination of how investors can benefit from committing capital to a company that does things right.
